Changemakers Majlis: Faith and Science – Connecting the Heart and the Head (1h30)

The Global Religious Leaders Summit brings together faith leaders, scientists, youth, women, business leaders, and decision makers for a Changemakers Majlis that will facilitate discussions on reconciling a strong relationship between religions/spiritual beliefs and science with a common objective of building a more secure and sustainable world. One area of agreement for people across the faith and science communities is that lives, livelihoods, and the environment are worth protecting. This overlapping consensus is an important opportunity for meaningful collaboration during a critical climate change moment. In an intricately connected world where peaceful coexistence is our priority and the effects of climate change are felt near-universally, how can we connect faith-based beliefs and scientific evidence to address pressing climate change challenges and co-design a more sustainable future?
